Parents caregivers and professionals worldwide have welcomed this essential guide to the highly recommended DIR/Floortime approach for treating children with any of the autism spectrum disorders (ASD). Unlike approaches that focus on changing specific behavior, Dr. Stanley Greenspan's program promotes the building blocks of healthy emotional and behavioral development. He shows that remarkably children with ASD do not have a fixed limited potential and may often join their peers to lead full psychologically healthy lives.

The Floortime approach can also be applied at any age—including early infancy when the first signs of risk for ASD may appear—so that preventing the full development of autism becomes a real possibility.

Part I defines autism and ASD identifies early signs and setting goals for work with children.

Part II shows how families can work toward the goals with their children.

Part III describes specific techniques of the model.

Part IV looks at developing treatment plans and modifying school environments.

Part V focuses on working with specific problems.

Engaging Autism includes new exciting information on neuroscience research into the effects of this approach plus guidance for parents navigating the controversies surrounding the treatment of autism.
